

CHRM & Diamond Trust Bank (DTB) Explore Strategic Partnership

CHRM College was pleased to host a consultative meeting with a delegation from Diamond Trust Bank (DTB) on May 3, 2026. This engagement signified the coming together of two industry thought leaders, uniting CHRM's expertise in human capital development with DTB's corporate leadership to bridge the gap between professional training and the evolving needs of the modern workforce.

A significant highlight of the engagement was welcoming back CHRM College alumna Lillian Ngala, who led the visiting DTB team. Her return to the College as a corporate leader serves as a powerful example of the career progression and impact our graduates achieve within the broader professional landscape.

CHRM College and Diamond Trust Bank (DTB) Explore Strategic Collaboration to Enhance Student Opportunities

NAIROBI – CHRM College was pleased to host a consultative meeting with a delegation from Diamond Trust Bank (DTB) on May 3, 2026. This engagement signified the coming together of two industry thought leaders, uniting CHRM’s expertise in human capital development with DTB’s corporate leadership to bridge the gap between professional training and the evolving needs of the modern workforce.

A significant highlight of the engagement was welcoming back CHRM College alumna Lillian Ngala, who led the visiting DTB team. Her return to the College as a corporate leader serves as a powerful example of the career progression and impact our graduates achieve within the broader professional landscape.

The delegation met with the College Principal and the management team to discuss how both institutions can align their strengths to support the next generation of professionals.

The discussions centered on creating meaningful value for students and stakeholders through several key initiatives:

- Mentorship and Coaching: Leveraging the expertise of DTB’s professional staff to provide CHRM students with practical, industry-specific guidance.
- Career Opportunities: Exploring structured pathways for internships and placements to help students transition smoothly into the workforce.
- Youth Empowerment: Developing joint programs focused on career readiness and professional ethics for young HR practitioners.
- Stakeholder Engagement: Strengthening ties between the banking sector and HR training to ensure the College’s curriculum remains responsive to market demands.

The potential for this collaboration marks an important step in the College's mission to provide more than just academic knowledge. By partnering with industry leaders like Diamond Trust Bank, CHRМ College continues to create an environment where students gain access to the networks and skills required to excel in a competitive job market.

As these conversations progress, we remain committed to keeping our community updated on the specific programs and opportunities that will arise from this partnership.

Bridging Borders: CHRM College and IGNOU Celebrate the Future of Flexible Education at 2026 Convocation

On Tuesday, April 7, 2026, CHRM College was filled with a profound sense of achievement and global connection. The institution held a momentous Convocation ceremony in partnership with the Indira Gandhi National Open University (IGNOU) through the Centre for Open and Distance Education (CODE) marking a significant milestone in the landscape of Kenyan higher education.

A Legacy of Global Partnership

For the second time, CHRM College through the center, acting as the recruitment center for IGNOU in Kenya, conducted the ceremony simultaneously with the global institution. This synchronized event served as a testament to the seamless integration of technology and education, proving that physical distance is no longer a barrier to academic excellence.

Expert Insights: The Revolution of E-Learning

The ceremony was graced by Dr. James Mwikya Reuben, PhD, who served as the Guest of Honor. In a compelling keynote address, Dr. Reuben explored the transformative power of distance learning. He noted that the collaboration between local institution like CHRM College and international institutions like IGNOU has revolutionized access to education, making it a reality for diverse populations across Kenya who require flexibility to balance professional and personal commitments.

“Distance and e-learning have made education a reality for diverse populations across Kenya. Your education is a tool; use it to positively impact society and lead with purpose.” Dr. James Mwikya Reuben, PhD

Honoring the Class of 2026

The heart of the ceremony was the graduation of nine dedicated students who have successfully navigated the rigors of digital and distance learning. These graduates represent a new breed of professionals, those characterized by resilience, self-discipline, and the ability to master complex subjects through a flexible framework.

The highlights of the day centered on three core pillars:

- Global Reach: Emphasizing CHRM

College’s role in expanding high-quality, international education within the Kenyan borders.

- Student Resilience: Celebrating the nine individuals who proved that dedication and digital literacy are the keys to modern career success.
- Mission-Driven Leadership: Reaffirming the college’s commitment to producing graduates who do not just hold certificates, but possess the vision to change their communities.

The Blueprint for Tomorrow

As the ceremony concluded, it was clear that these nine graduates are the blueprint for the future of impactful learning. By embracing the “Open and Distance” model, CHRM College continues to position itself as a thought leader in career development and professional certification.

We extend our heartfelt congratulations to the Class of 2026. As you step out into the professional world, you carry with you the prestige of a global education and the practical spirit of a trailblazer.

CHRM College and Mutie Advocates Forge Strategic Partnership to Advance Data Protection Excellence in Kenya

In a significant move to strengthen corporate governance and regulatory compliance, CHRM College officially signed a Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) with Mutie Advocates on March 25, 2026 at the CHRM College campus.

This landmark collaboration establishes a structured framework to jointly develop, market, and deliver specialized data protection training, capacity-building initiatives, and comprehensive compliance support services.

As organizations navigate the complexities of the Data Protection Act, 2019, the need for practical, industry-aligned expertise has never been greater. This partnership merges CHRM College's storied reputation in Human Resource development with the legal prowess of Mutie Advocates to offer a one-stop shop for organizational integrity.

The collaboration focuses on four key pillars:

Specialized Training: Designing accredited and non-accredited programs specifically tailored for the HR function and the broader corporate environment.

Practical Application: Promoting deep awareness of subsidiary regulations to ensure the Data Protection Act is lived, not just filed.

Compliance Audits: Executing joint advisory mandates and independent consulting assignments to help institutions identify and mitigate data risks.

Enhanced Governance: Strengthening accountability standards within institutions to meet international best practices.

The timing of this MOU is particularly strategic as CHRM College prepares for its May and September academic intake. New and existing students, as well as corporate partners, will now have access to cutting-edge curricula that address the most pressing legal challenges in the modern workplace.

“This partnership is about more than just compliance; it is about empowering HR professionals to be the custodians of trust in their organizations,” noted the leadership during the signing ceremony.

Is your institution fully aligned with the Data Protection Act? Together, CHRM College and Mutie Advocates are ready to guide you through audits, training, and advisory services.

CHRM Mentorship Program: Turning Ambition into Action

The CHRM Mentorship Program officially wrapped up on April 10th with a vibrant closing ceremony, marking the end of five days of intensive, real-world growth for our participants.

It was a proud moment for the participants at CHRM College. This program was built to bridge the gap between classroom theory and the fast-paced reality of the corporate world, and hopefully our mentees will do exactly that.

The ceremony was more than a formal hand-off; it was a final push of encouragement. Our Guest Speaker, Raphael Mbuthia, shared invaluable insights and challenged the graduates to pay it forward by inviting other aspiring professionals to join future cohorts.

We were also honored to have our leadership team present to support the mentees:

- Mr. Simon Kachibo (HOD-Business)
- Moses Maina (Business Development Manager)
- Justin Masila (Finance Manager)

To our graduates: Your certificate is a badge of honor, but the real prize is the network you've built and the confidence you've gained over the last week. These are the tools that will carry you through a brilliant career.

Congratulations to all our mentees we can't wait to see how you'll shake up the corporate world.

Investing in the Future of HR: CHRM College Awards 2026 Scholarships.

At CHRM College, we've always believed that while education is the great equalizer, talent is the ultimate asset. This week, we turned that belief into action by officially awarding scholarships to two exceptional individuals, Wellington and Valentine.

This ceremony was a powerful reminder of our core mission. We aren't just an institution of textbooks and exams; we are a foundation for human potential. By removing financial barriers, we aren't simply giving a gift, we are making a strategic investment in the next generation of HR professionals.

The event was anchored by a profound message from our Board Member, Rev. Canon Stephine Opiyo Obong'o. Drawing from the Parable of the Talents, he challenged our two scholars to look beyond the financial aid. He urged them not to "bury" their potential out of fear or complacency, but to multiply it through discipline, hard work, and a spirit of service.

It was a call to action that resonated with everyone in the room: Potential is only as good as what you do with it.

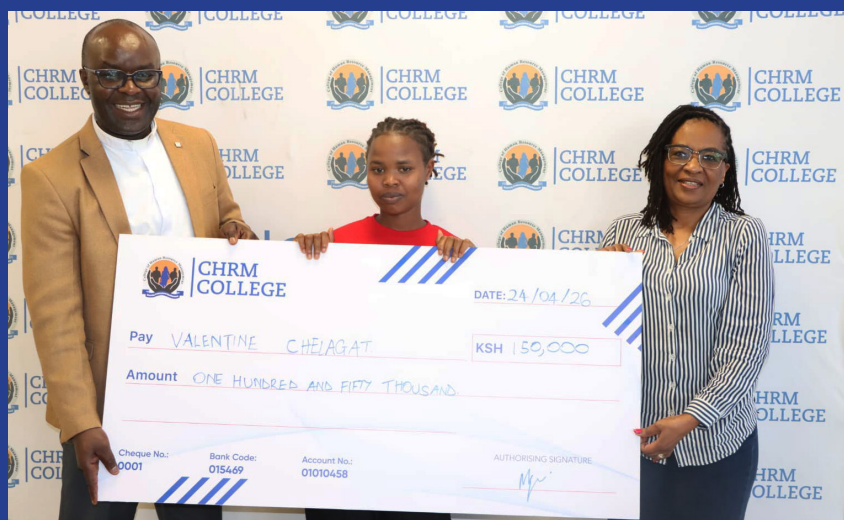

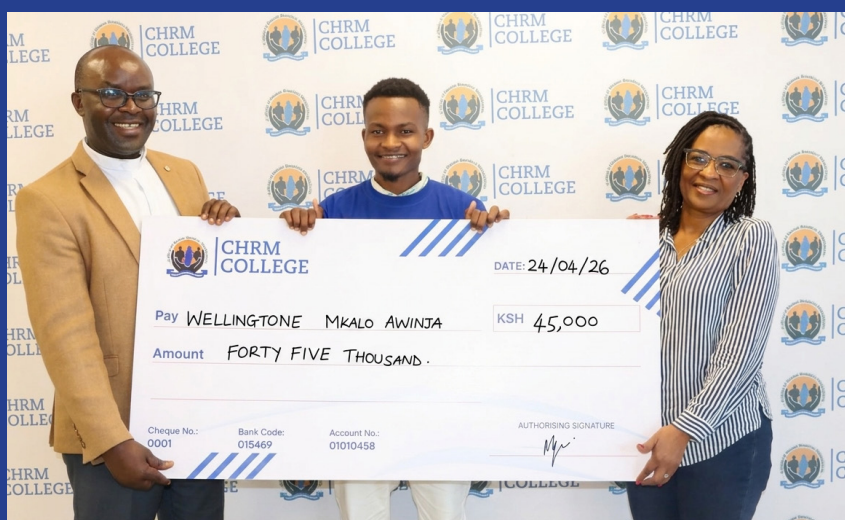

Our Principal reinforced this commitment by reminding Wellington and Valentine that their journey here isn't a solo one. She officially opened the doors, both literally and figuratively, assuring them that her office remains a space for mentorship, guidance, and personal growth.

We were also joined by key members of our leadership team who stood in support of this milestone: Linet Chedeye (Head of Academics), Moses Maina (Business Development Manager) and Amos (Student President).

For CHRM College, Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR) isn't a checkbox. It's about ensuring that the HR profession is accessible to those with the drive to lead it, regardless of their starting point.

We are incredibly proud to welcome Wellington and Valentine into this new chapter. We can't wait to see how they multiply their talents and contribute to the future of Human Resources.

CHRM College Formally Welcomes May 2026 Intake During Physical Orientation at Hazina Trade Centre

CHRM College officially inaugurated the May 2026 academic semester with a comprehensive Physical Orientation held at the Hazina Trade Centre. The event marked a significant milestone for the incoming cohort as they gathered in large numbers to begin their professional and academic development within the institution. The ceremony was distinguished by the presence of Rev. Canon Stephine Obongó, a CHRM Board Member, Faculty Member, and alumnus, who provided a unique perspective on the college's legacy and the opportunities available to the new students. He was joined by the College Principal, CHRP Margaret K. Kinyanjui, alongside members of the faculty and administration. The event also saw a strong showing of parents and guardians, whose presence underscored the community support vital to student success. Throughout the session, the college leadership provided the new students with essential insights into the various facets of campus life. The briefings covered academic expectations, the scope of student support services, and the technicalities of admissions and examinations. Additionally, students were introduced to the diverse learning resources and professional growth opportunities designed to enhance their competitiveness in the global workforce.

entations, the orientation served as an interactive platform where students engaged directly with faculty members and staff to address specific inquiries. The day concluded with a guided tour of the campus facilities, allowing the May 2026 intake to familiarize themselves with their new learning environment.

gratitude to the staff, parents, and guest speakers who contributed to the success of the day. We warmly welcome our new students to the CHRM family and remain committed to supporting them throughout what promises to be a transformative and successful learning journey.
